Salon Press signs ad sales deal with Video International

Video International Group, a leading media seller in Russia, will be selling advertising for Salon Press titles. The parties expect this to boost the ad sales of the publishing house by reaching new categories of advertisers.

Moscow, December 15, 2006 – Today the Salon Press publishing house, which is part of OAO RBC Information Systems (RTS, MICEX: RBCI), has announced the signing of an agreement with Video International. As a result of negotiations the companies have agreed that two advertising agencies, Eidos and Video International Press, will be jointly handling ad sales for Salon Press magazines.

Until recently, Eidos has acted as the exclusive sales house for all Salon Press publications, which put them ahead of other interior décor and construction magazines among such core advertisers as manufacturers of furniture, finishing and construction products, as well as providers of construction and home repair services.

Given the upbeat performance of the publishing house's flagship titles and the launch of new projects, the management of Salon Press resolved to boost its sales among such advertiser groups as alcohol and tobacco, clothing, cosmetics and perfumes, cars, mobile communications services and mobile phones companies, where Video International Group holds traditionally strong positions.

Sergei Shustov, Salon Press General Director, stressed that he regarded the ad sales agreement with Video International as part of the company's strategic development plan. "Our publishing house tops the market of home décor and architecture publications in Russia both in terms of advertising revenue and readership. Collaboration with Video International will promote the company in its competitive market position, providing outreach to new audiences," Sergei Shustov said.
